Vine and Branches

We had a small grape vine on our farm. It was behind the ground cellar and just below the smoke house, in the yard behind our house. I had to carefully mow the yard around it so as not to damage any of it. My mother would have us pick the grapes when they were ripe and she would can them in Mason quart jars. We would put them in the ground cellar for safe storage and enjoy them throughout the year. The grapes and the grape juice were very delicious.

Jesus talked about grape vines and branches as he compared our relationship to him and God (See John 15). Many times in scripture we hear of vines and other agricultural images. Sometimes such images were used to remind us of the ideal in which everyone who worked hard would enjoy the fruit of their labors and even, on occasion, bask in comfort. This ideal included the vision of Shalom in which people who followed God's commands, who lived together with others in peace and justice would benefit via abundant harvests and fair and equal treatment.

In the agricultural setting in which I grew up we did work hard. Part of that work was to store the resources we harvested from the land so that we continued to have what we needed for food through the winter and fall. Canning was a big part of my mother's work: grapes, peaches, pears, vegetables, pickles, etc. We also stored resources in the huge family freezer: meats, vegetables, fruits, etc. As a family we worked to provide what we needed for ourselves. It was fun sitting around the family table enjoying what we had grown and stored. I felt so connected to my family and to the land.

It is this connection that Jesus seeks to encourage in our relationships with each other and with God. Reading the Bible reminds us of the importance of this connection. When leaders of the people of God, the Hebrew people, gave attention to God, what God commanded and to doing justice with regard to the people, they did well. When the leaders and the people did not honor and remember their connection to God, they faltered. Their society fractured into social classes (see the book of Amos or Jeremiah 23 for examples).

King Solomon is a good example. While most of us remember the wisdom of Solomon as is mentioned in the Bible, he had weaknesses which led to sad consequences. Solomon's extravagant lifestyle placed economic hardships upon the people and country. All of the luxury he enjoyed (lavish meals, luxurious palaces) took lots of money and heavy taxes. Solomon forgot that his true loyalty belonged to the God of Israel. His actions led to the idolatry of power and wealth.

Losing our connection with the source of all that we have in God, leads us to forget about loving our neighbor as we love ourselves. We then forget how important it is to connect with our neighbors. Solomon's pleasures came at a great expense to others. Remembering that we are all branches attached to the true vine, in God's love, will help us to avoid hoarding and, instead, to care for each other.

If I wasn't careful in my mowing and damaged the vine, the whole body of the grape vine would suffer. If I didn't do my part on the farm, the whole farm and family would suffer. In fact, when my father became sick, our sense of family expanded. Our church friends came to our aid and helped us through the tough times. They recognized themselves as part of the same vine in God. They were willing to lay down their own time and resources to help us, a form of laying down your life for the sake of another.

The grape vine reminds me of God's vision of Shalom for us. To some it may seem like the dream of utopia, but I do not believe it to be a sentimental dream. Rather, it is the promise of one vine, the promise of enough for everyone, enough work, enough food, and enough hope. It is the promise in which no one person succeeds at the expense of another. Every branch of the vine is treated equally, valued, and no one is allowed to fall through the cracks. Only then can we live and work in peace.

I am thankful that you are a branch attached to the same vine as me, the love of God.

Yours in Christ, Dennis

“Living Rooms for Lent”

The Educational Ministry Team is offering a small group study during Lent called “Living Rooms for Lent”. Each group will consist of at least 6 – 10 people that will meet once a week during Lent in someone’s home. It is the hope to have at least four groups offered on different days and times. Hopefully there will be a group that will be meeting at time that is convenient for you. This year, Lent begins in mid-February.

Several different studies are being considered and the Educational Ministry Team will be making a decision in a week or two. To do this event at least 3 more people are needed to volunteer as leaders and who are willing to host this study in their homes. More information will be coming in the next few weeks. If you are interested in becoming a leader or joining a small group please contact Kathi Martin at mkm9291@verizon.net or 781-245-2409.
