A Special Christmas

As you know, this is a special Christmas for me because it will be my last one with Centre Congregational Church. It will also be my last one before retiring from full-time Christian Ministry.

I felt the emotional charge of it yesterday as I started the service and looked out at our beautiful congregation. I felt it while the Choir sang a couple of beautiful Advent Anthems. I felt it while greeting everyone before, during, and after the worship service. I felt it during the Baptism. I felt it as I stepped up into the pulpit. I especially felt it seeing my girlfriend, Linda Hey, visiting with us yesterday. I am very happy that you are excited to meet her and make her feel welcome. She enjoyed talking with all of you.

Most of all, this Christmas is special to me because I can reflect upon all of the gifts that the one born on Christmas has made possible for me and for all of us.

The coming of the Christ child breaks away the barriers that once prevented us from knowing each other and leads us to a place in which we meet, pray, worship, and encounter God's call to follow Jesus. I think back to the time in my life when I was struggling with what I felt was God's call to me to pursue the vocation of ordained Christian ministry. I could have said "no" to this call, but I know now, that I would have deeply regretted it.

At the time, it seemed an impossible idea for me to successfully graduate from college, be accepted and graduate from Theological School. I was in way over my head, really! I had no clue what Theological School would be like. And then, there was this: how would God use someone like me, who grew up feeding cattle, driving farm tractors, and harvesting crops? How would God use someone like me who was not a great student? How would God use someone who did not have a great self-image, someone who lacked self-confidence? Seemed impossible then, and even now. Part of the Advent message, as I said recently in an Advent sermon, is that God prepares the way, as the Prophet Isaiah and John the Baptist preached.

Yes, there are certain preparations that we can make, like having open hearts and minds to what Jesus brings. But the majority of the work is in God's hands, a work and a promise that we are called to trust and believe.

On many an occasion, at least weekly, I must trust that God will work through me in ways I hope for, but mostly I think, in ways I do not anticipate. What is more important for me to say to you is that on many an occasion, at least weekly, I trust that God will work through you in ways I hope for, but mostly, in ways I do not anticipate.

Throughout my whole career I have been witness to the light of Jesus Christ being born in people and places I did not expect. It has been for me just like the first Christmas when Jesus, Son of God, the Messiah, was born in an unlikely place, a stable. Who would have thought? Seemed impossible then, and even now.

While I have journeyed with you who read this, Jesus has been present to and through us in ways that only God can number and remember. Out of grief, unexpected and enduring friendships that have given our lives meaning and hope have developed. Out of broken faith journeys, many of you have returned to renew your faith and have shown an amazing willingness to let your light shine as disciples and leaders in Christ! Many of you have consistently been the light of Christ since your earliest years, providing a strong foundation for God's ministry. Many of you have had faith journeys in other places and now you are blessing us by bringing your light to bless our present. What I celebrate especially this Christmas is the joy of seeing so many of you grow in your faith and willingness to take the leap of that faith in new ways. I see Jesus being born in all of you!

Let's be prepared to see Jesus' birth in many places, many expected places, but mostly, if experience holds true, unexpected places and people. As Advent teaches us, let us watch, be ready, listen, and anticipate what God is sending and birthing. Things that seem impossible, unlikely, improbable, even foolish.

Yes, God sent a babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes, born in a stable, to be the Savior of the World. And yes, God has brought us together from some of the most unlikely and unexpected places, to be his followers. Who would have thought? Who, but God almighty, Creator, who loves us all, unconditionally.

Notes of Thanks!

I wish to thank everyone who contributed to a very successful Confirmation Retreat this past weekend. I especially want to thank Barbara Langill, Interim Director of Faith Formation because she was the organizational wizard who put all of the pieces together, with the supportive work of the Education Ministries Team. Most of all, the Confirmands and their Mentors were a great group who came ready to learn and grow in their faith. I am grateful and honored to know each of them and look forward to their Confirmation on Sunday, January 24, 2016.

I am grateful to Mr. Bob Wood, of Wood Trucking, Peabody, MA, for allowing me to, again, borrow three of his sheep for our Night in Bethlehem experience on Saturday, December 5th. It is very kind and trusting of him to help us add to the atmosphere of remembering life in the days of Jesus. I am also grateful to Scott DeSantis who helped me to pick up the sheep and transport them to and fro from Mr. Wood's farm. Given the sheep have grown over the last three years, I invited a friend of mine from Prince Edward Island, Canada, Reubin MacDonald, and his grandson, Cameron to help me move the sheep from trailer to pen and back again. Thanks to all!

Dennis
